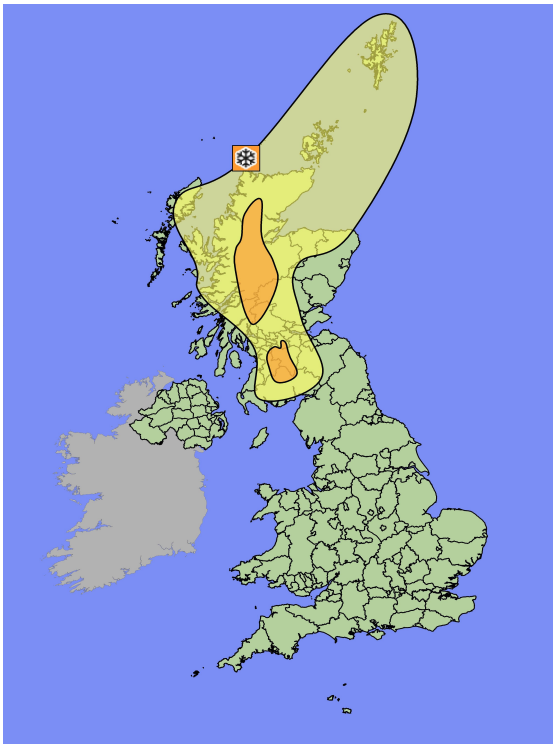
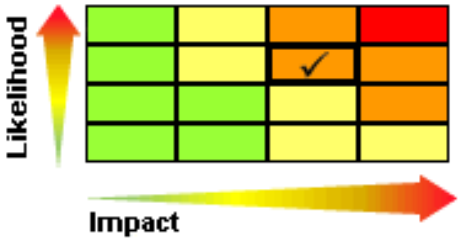
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An increasingly cold northwesterly flow will become established across Scotland on Sunday and bring further sleet and snow showers, these most frequent across northern and western Scotland. 2-6cm is likely at low levels in places, 4-10 cm above about 100 m, and perhaps with 15cm or more above 300 m. Icy stretches are likely this evening, overnight and well into Monday, returning Monday evening.

The Met Office have issued an Amber Warning of Snow

Valid from 15:00 on Sun, 04th Dec 2011 until 23:59 on Mon, 05th Dec 2011

Sleet and snow showers will continue during Sunday afternoon and evening across Scotland and will last through Monday, bringing accumulations of snow to some areas. Icy stretches are likely to form on untreated surfaces.

The public should be aware that this could lead to travel disruption in places.
